

India Water Resources Information System (India WRIS) FAQ

---

Q. 1. What is India-WRIS?

India Water Resources Information System popularly known as 'India WRIS' provides comprehensive, credible, and contextual view of India's water resources data along with allied natural resources data and information in a standardized national GIS framework. It's objective to provide a 'SINGLE WINDOW SOLUTION' for all water resources data.

Q.2. What kind of information/dataset is available in India-WRIS?

The project scope has 5 major groups of datasets having 12 main information system, 35 sub info-system, 30 spatial layers with more than 108 sub layers of 5-50 years data and Basin-Wise report generation:

- Administrative layers
- Water resources projects
- Thematic layers
- SEnvironment data

Q. 3. What are facilities/tools available in India-WRIS?

The following tools are provided as given below:

- Mapping tools
- Data Visualization tools
- Query & Discovery tools
- Contextual tools
- Meta data/info tools
- Reporting tools
- Analysis tools

Q. 4. What are the categories of users for access to GIS data?

- General Users- Can visit the portal and get snapshot of data sets on reduced scale of selected database
- Premium Users - Can access web application data sets in details and tools after registration.
- CWC Intranet Users

Next FAQ Set >>
Irrigation